Help Me Grieve: A Healthcare Professional's Overview to Evidence-Based Support for the Grieving

April Price, RN, CHPN

Grief takes many forms, and while there are some similar experiences, grief is different for each individual. As healthcare professionals we provide caring, evidence-based support to those experiencing grief, including the ability to identify signs and symptoms of grieving.

This is a detailed overview of grief and mourning and necessary reactions to loss, as well as how professionals may assess, plan care and support those who are grieving. We will discuss types of grief, such as anticipatory grief, grief triggers, signs of complicated grief and evidence-based interventions you may employ with patients and families. We'll also share some resources for additional study and support for the healthcare provider.

- Following this presentation the participant will be able to:
- Define/describe grief from a clinical viewpoint, including its types, stages and complications
 - Identify and apply evidence-based tools and techniques
 - Describe self-care tips for care providers dealing with difficult patient issues
 - Access resources and career growth opportunities for healthcare and mental health providers
